Caci and Randazzo of RE/MAX Leading Edge were accepted as Members of Top 5 in Real Estate Network

Reaching the pinnacle of their profession nationally, Bill Caci and Laurie Randazzo, of RE/MAX Leading Edge were accepted as Members of the Top 5 in Real Estate Network, the most prestigious of all industry achievements.

More than just a sales-driven recognition, the Top 5 in Real Estate Network meets a need that heretofore has never been addressed - helping consumers identify the most professional real estate agents in North America. To qualify, each member must first meet a stringent set of criteria, based upon performance, as well as educational and professional skills and service to the consumer.

Members of the network are carefully selected and managed by RISMedia, which has provided the real estate industry with objective, unbiased news for nearly 30 years. As a Member of the Top 5 Network, Caci and Randazzo are among the first real estate agents to be accepted into this elite organization.

Allan Dalton, the president and co-founder of RISMedia's Top 5 Network congratulated Caci and Randazzo for earning this top status within the industry. "They have reached the very highest level of North America's residential real estate industry. Not only are their professional accomplishments extraordinary, they have long been true champions for home buyers and sellers in their area. It is a pleasure to welcome Caci and Randazzo into this elite group of industry leaders."

According to John Featherston, RISMedia's CEO & publisher and co-founder of the Top 5 in Real Estate Network, the significance of Top 5 is that consumers deserve full transparency regarding all matters related to the real estate transaction, which often begins with the need to select a highly competent, experienced and results-oriented real estate professional.

Top 5 in Real Estate has been established to both empower consumers with leading real estate content through Top 5 members, as well as to ensure that consumers are made fully aware that there is a material difference between average and exceptional real estate professionals.
