Part of the Boston Landing mixed-use development, 40 Guest St. is a planned 160,000 s/f facility that will be the home of the Boston Celtics' new, 71,000 s/f training and practice facility. The Auerbach Center at New Balance World Headquarters is named in honor of team legend Arnold "Red" Auerbach. The building will also feature two floors of class A laboratory and office space totaling 83,500 s/f and 5,700 s/f of retail space.

The project broke ground in November 2016 with completion expected in mid-2018. TCG provides leasing and property management services for Boston Landing.

"NB Development Group has redefined the term 'mixed-use' with Boston Landing," said Skeffington. "The development includes lab and office space, retail, residential and hotel, as well as state-of-the-art professional sports training facilities. There's no other development like it in Greater Boston. East Boston Savings Bank has a deep appreciation for ownership's vision for Boston Landing and has been an excellent partner in helping bring it to life."

Located close to downtown Boston and adjacent to New Balance's recently completed world headquarters, Boston Landing offers a transit-oriented, urban location with the parking, green space and economic advantage of a suburban campus environment. The development includes a variety of property types, including 650,000 s/f of office/laboratory space; an NHL regulation hockey arena that serves as the Boston Bruins practice facility; a 70,000 s/f basketball practice and training facility for the Boston Celtics; a 175-room hotel; a world-class track and field sports center; a 295-unit residential apartment building; 80,000 s/f of retail; and 1.4 acres of landscaped open space. In spring 2017, Boston Landing will add a newly constructed commuter rail station, providing one of the system's quickest trips into the city as well as one of the farthest-reaching lines to the suburbs.
