

Callahan Construction Managers finishes work at Cambridge College

December 01, 2017 - Owners Developers & Managers

Charlestown, MA Callahan Construction Managers (Callahan), a Bridgewater-based full-service construction management firm, celebrated the completion of Cambridge College's campus relocation project. Located in Hood Business Park, the project consisted of a 108,000 s/f tenant fit-out with modern classrooms, laboratories, meeting rooms, offices, administrative areas, studies and lounges. The facility, which was designed by Wilson Architects, is equipped with audio/visual communications and teaching technologies, as well as ancillary support spaces for the college.

“We will be forever grateful for the care and attention provided by our team at Callahan Construction, who worked tirelessly to make our vision for a new Boston campus a reality,” said Phillip Page, vice president of strategic partnerships and project manager. “This amazing group of professionals delivered a remarkable level of commitment to create an end product that we are very proud to now call home.”

Cambridge College's unified campus marks a major milestone in the college's growth as the move consolidates four schools into a single campus, offering one accessible location. The new campus, located walking distance from Sullivan Sq. and the MBTA Orange Line, provides greater accessibility for students and positions the college in an ideal setting to build and foster relationships with local community organizations and businesses.

“We are proud to have played such a significant role in Cambridge College's mission of establishing a cohesive Boston campus,” said Patrick Callahan, President of Callahan

Construction Managers. “This exceptional new facility involved a great deal of collaboration and dedication that our team was eager to support throughout all phases of construction.”

The Cambridge College relocation project is among a number of projects Callahan has managed in the education sector. With longstanding expertise in a wide range of real estate sectors, the firm excels in ensuring the highest level of quality, value and integrity across all types of projects.
