Donlan, founder of Women's Business Boston, writes - "Her Turn:"

November 26, 2007 - Front Section

Vicki Donlan, co-founder and first executive director of the South Shore Women's Business Network and founder of The Alliance of Women's Business and Prof. Organizations has written a book entitled "Her Turn: Why It's Time for Women to Lead in America".

The book makes the case that women have the numbers, talents, determination and willingness to lead and they are ready for the challenge. Her Turn delves into the changes that will result when women take the lead in business, politics, higher education, health care, and philanthropy, and how those changes will benefit generations to come, in America and around the world. Donlan covers the obstacles, opportunities, prospects, and emerging roles for female leaders and challenges them and their male counterparts to do what is best for America - elevate women to the helm across industry sectors.

Donlan is publisher and founder of Women's Business Boston, a 25,000 controlled-circulation newspaper devoted to women in business in the Mass., N.H. and R. I. region. She is a regular guest on N.E. Cable News' Business Day.

Donlan has been recognized and honored by numerous organizations for her work in assisting women in business to achieve success including the U.S. Small Business Adm. as Mass. and N.E. Woman Business Advocate.
