Vision 3 Architects celebrates ribbon cutting for CCRI's Dental Lab

February 09, 2010 - Rhode Island

The Community College of Rhode Island officially opened the doors on December 15th to their newly renovated Flanagan Campus dental assisting lab. CCRI's president, Ray DiPasquale, led the ceremony which concluded with the official ribbon-cutting with members of the campaign steering committee.

Designed by Vision 3 Architects, the main goal of the renovation was a modernization of the dental lab, which treats 3,000 patients annually. The modernization included aesthetic renovations, new examination chairs, and new technology to help students track patient information and provide digital X-rays.

The project team included Creative Environment Corp. and Coletta Contracting Co.

The $750,000 project was funded by CCRI's capital campaign.
