Waitkus promoted to project manager by BVH Integrated Services

April 13, 2010 - Construction Design & Engineering

BVH Integrated Services, Inc. has promoted Scott Waitkus, P.E., to project manager. In his new position, Waitkus will lead the firm's civil engineering design teams and coordinate production, schedule, and project approvals. He will serve as our clients' day-to-day project contact and see that BVH meets all budget, design and schedule goals.

Waitkus has nearly 25 years of construction industry experience and has been a member of BVH since 1999, serving as senior civil engineer.

His portfolio includes tunnels and utilities, drainage, grading, and site improvements for universities, public schools, corporate campuses, and many other types of facilities. Waitkus has led successful civil engineering projects for numerous notable clients, including the University of Connecticut, Southern Connecticut State University, Eastern Connecticut State University, and the University of Vermont.

A Registered Professional Engineer in the State of Connecticut, Waitkus earned his Associate of Science in Civil Engineering Technology from Capital Community College in Hartford. He is a candidate for a Bachelor of Science in Civil Engineering from Central Connecticut State University.
