Education tops the agenda

September 15, 2010 - Construction Design & Engineering

With just a short time out for fun and games on Oct. 29, ASM will remain focused this fall on providing essential information and educational resources to help subcontractors meet the demands of today's challenging environment. Our programs this fall cover the gamut - ranging from a safety session on all-too common "falls-through" accidents, to a thorough review of steps to take when crisis strikes on the jobsite, a preview of new federal health reform requirements, and a repeat of a popular LEED workshop. Visit the ASM website for the latest additions.
