EPA awards two Reckson/SL Green Realty Connecticut properties with Energy Star Labels

October 22, 2010 - Green Buildings

According to Reckson, a division of SL Green Realty Corp., that as part of SL Green's sustainable initiatives, two of the company's Class A properties in its Connecticut portfolio have been awarded Energy Star Labels by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA).

750 Washington Blvd. in Stamford and 500 West Putnam in Greenwich each have been recognized by the EPA for outstanding performance in energy efficiency, placing them among the most energy efficient office buildings in the United States.

"We are thrilled to receive these EPA awards," said John Barnes, senior vice president and senior director. "We are firm in our commitment to sustainability and our market-leading initiatives for the company's Greater New York Metro region portfolio. It is gratifying to be recognized on a national level for our efforts."

750 Washington Blvd., which is also known as Stamford Towers, is a 10-story, 185,000 s/f building situated across from the Stamford Transportation Center.

500 West Putnam is a 4-story, 121,000 s/f recently renovated office building, whose rooftop features a 100 kilowatt photovoltaic solar panel system.
