Dancoes, Farrelly and Johnson of Cushman & Wakefield ink 3,600 s/f

January 06, 2011 - Front Section

According to Cushman & Wakefield, the firm has completed a new lease at the Bank of America Building on behalf of Farley White Manchester, LLC. The lease marks the relocation of Renesys' Headquarters office. Cushman & Wakefield's director Denis Dancoes, executive director Thomas Farrelly and senior associate Sue Ann Johnson represented the landlord, Farley White Manchester, LLC. The tenant, Renesys, was represented by Lisa Morrison of Prolman Realty.

The Bank of America Building is located at 1155 Elm St. The building's reputation and successful track record are based on its corporate image, location, technology infrastructure, as well as the building ownership's commitment to strong on-site property management and long-term tenant relationships. The building has a polished red granite exterior and an attached 436-car parking garage.

Farley White Manchester, LLC is a local commercial real estate investment firm with an unparalleled reputation for quality, responsive on-site property management and a commitment to tenant retention. Farley White's mission is to provide extraordinary value for our customers, generate responsible financial returns on our invested capital, and create lasting and beneficial relationships for our employees and the communities where we operate.
