MFS Investment Management selects CBT Architects to provide services to relocate headquarters

February 03, 2011 - Owners Developers & Managers

MFS Investment Management (MFS) has selected CBT Architects to provide architectural services for the relocation of its corporate headquarters to 111 Huntington Ave. MFS' new office will occupy 11 floors in the office tower, totaling over 280,000 s/f.

MFS is a premier asset management firm that offers mutual funds, institutional and separately managed account strategies in equity and fixed-income products, which are supported by a global team of portfolio managers and research analysts.

"CBT understands that the planning and design of corporate interiors should not only be innovative, but should also address and support established business goals, focusing on communication and effective space utilization," said Robert Brown, AIA, IIDA, LEED AP, principal at CBT. "Our firm is looking forward to collaborating with MFS to develop a design that conveys a distinctive aesthetic with appropriate business solutions."

CBT Architects is a Boston-based professional design firm providing services in architecture, interior design and urban design. Founded in 1967, the firm's practice ranges from multi-family residential structures and developments, to major office towers and urban district renewals, to a host of academic campus facilities. This variety of experience informs the unique approach we take to understanding all user needs. Over 175 awards recognize excellence and creativity in our design of new buildings and the renovation of existing structures. CBT currently employs 120 architects, planners, interior designers, and support personnel.
