Vogelmann promoted to principal at Gensler

June 16, 2011 - Construction Design & Engineering

The local office of Gensler has promoted Arlyn Vogelmann to principal and the following individuals to associate: Anastasia Huggins, Peter Sargent, and Kellie Torres.

This year, Gensler appointed a total of 13 principals, 41 senior associates, and 144 associates across the firm's international offices.

Vogelmann, a principal with over 20 years experience, exemplifies a new generation of leadership in workplace strategy and planning that uses a multidisciplinary design approach to deliver innovative and responsive solutions. Vogelmann joined the firm in 1997 and is a leader of Gensler's Consulting and Workplace practices in the Boston office. Her core expertise is advising organizations on the ability of the work environment to enhance business performance and support organizational culture.

"This year we recognize Arlyn's strong commitment and her expertise in growing the firm's Consulting practice. In addition, our new Associates have exhibited an elevated level of contribution and influence on our work and the future of our firm," said Douglas Gensler, AIA, NCARB, managing director. "These individuals add to our culture of design excellence through leadership and collaboration," said Jeanne Nutt, IIDA, managing director.
