July 07, 2011 - Front Section

Grubb & Ellis Company represented Enobia Pharma in the sublease of 22,000 s/f of office space at 55 Cambridge Parkway. The lease represents the establishment of a U.S. headquarters for the Montreal-based life sciences firm.

Grubb & Ellis' Paul Delaney and John Coakley, associate vice presidents in the office group, along with Hank Amabile, senior vice president, also in the office group, facilitated the transaction on behalf of Enobia Pharma.

"We are pleased to establish a more significant presence in Cambridge, which is a major biotech center," said Ted Harding, senior director of human resources at Enobia Pharma.

Enobia Pharma's space at 55 Cambridge Parkway was originally leased by Verenum Corp. The building totals nearly 280,000 s/f and is owned by INVESCO Real Estate.
