REFA-CT Gala networking event to be held September 22nd

August 04, 2011 - Connecticut

John Heffron burst onto the comedic scene during the prime of his college heyday. Although he did graduate in his home state of Michigan, Heffron's priorities became clear when he began to skip night class to perform live stand up. His first gig was even on the University of Michigan's campus at the Main Street Comedy Showcase. Since then, his comedy has evolved in a unique and creative fashion as he has grown from a fun-loving college student to a bewildered newlywed. He not only won the second season of NBC's Last Comic Standing, but was also a finalist in the subsequent season. Heffron's amusing and extensive material has earned him two separate half hour specials on the hit stand up show, Comedy Central Presents and he has become a regular on numerous VH1 satire series. From his early days as Danny Bonaduce's wingman on Detroit's number one morning show, Danny Bonaduce and the Q Crew, to one of his current roles sharing the screen with Courtney Cox-Arquette on FX's Dirt, Heffron has hailed experience from many talented comedians. His new one hour Comedy Central Special airs July 18th. This will be his 4th CD.
