Nominations sought for annual N.H. Construction Industry Ethics Award; deadline is Dec. 5

October 18, 2011 - Construction Design & Engineering

Nominations are being sought for the sixteenth annual New Hampshire Construction Industry Ethics Award. The award is presented to "the individual, business or organization that, through its words and deeds, best demonstrates a commitment to upholding the highest ethical standards in construction." The award carries with it a plaque and $1,000 cash contribution to the recipient's charity of choice.

Nominations will be accepted through December 5, 2011, with the recipient to be announced in April.

Wood, a nationally known writer and newsletter publisher and past president of the Construction Writers Association, has championed the issue of ethics in construction. "The award is not limited to contractors," he says. "The recipient can just as well be an architect, owner, subcontractor or private individual. What's important is that this entity has taken an action or pattern of actions that exemplify the highest level of integrity and adherence to ethical behavior involving construction."

"Construction people aren't always perceived in the most stellar manner by the general public," said Wood. "However, the vast majority are good guys who play by the rules and treat their clients and building team partners with the utmost respect and honesty. I think we need to recognize and promote those people, and hopefully raise the standards for the entire industry."

Judging for the award is done by a panel of New Hampshire industry-related individuals, people whose own integrity and judgment is universally respected, and includes past award recipients.

Prior recipients of the award include John Zahr of Harvey Construction, Bedford; Bruss Construction, Inc., Bradford; Paul Morin of Tarkka Homes, Weare; Ron Severino of Severino Trucking Co., Candia; Tom Palazzi of The Palazzi Corp., Hooksett; Rich Lambert of Pro Con Inc., Hooksett; Leighton White of Leighton A. White, Inc., Milford; Mark and Rick Charbonneau of Continental Paving, Londonderry; Jim Morrill of Morrill Construction, North Haverhill; Tom Avallone of Cobb Hill Construction, Concord; Jack McDevitt Jr. of McDevitt Trucks, Manchester; Levi Ladd of L.K. Ladd, Concord; Samuel Audley of R.S. Audley, Inc., Bow; William Walker of The MacMillin Company, Keene; and Bill Clark of Clark Masonry, Milford.
