MAK's business & corporate law practice is committed to guiding and advising our clients- from start-ups and small family-owned companies to large public entities- to help them achieve their growth and prosperity goals.

MAK's business litigation practice covers all aspects of real estate and business law.

MAK's construction law practice counsels and represents a broad range of construction industry clients throughout R.I. and Mass.- from family-owned and closely-held businesses to large public and privately held corporations.

MAK's recognized and highly respected real estate practice focuses on the representation of developers.

Our clients include major national, regional, and local developers of properties of all kinds, including office, industrial, retail, residential, and mixed-use.

A now leading part of our business is appealing taxes for commercial and large residential properties.

Real estate values have plummeted. In some areas, fair market values have gone down by as much as 50% or more. Correspondingly, R.I. and Mass. cities and towns have not reduced their tax assessments in accordance with the vast reduction in values.

We have had great success in appealing tax assessments and obtaining abatements in tax assessments in both R.I. and Mass. over the last few years. Some commercial clients have seen their tax bills go down by 30% to 40% and even more. The reductions have resulted in our clients receiving substantial checks and/or substantial future credits.

In certain circumstances, we will entertain a contingent fee arrangement in regard to these matters.
