Goldstein joins The Simon Companies as vice president

January 26, 2012 - Retail

The Simon Companies has hired Randall Goldstein as vice president and director of fiduciary properties. In this capacity, Goldstein will formulate growth strategies and actively develop new business opportunities for The Simon Companies, with a special emphasis on establishing new client relationships by leveraging the firm's 45-year track record as a successful owner and integrated real estate service provider. Goldstein will work with property owners and other entities to promote and execute the company's asset-optimization service platform specifically within the asset, property and construction-management disciplines. He also will identify property acquisition and strategic partnership opportunities to grow The Simon Companies' portfolio of commercial and multifamily holdings, as well as recommend new lines of business for the company.

Goldstein has nearly 20 years of development, asset management, leasing and acquisitions experience in the New England real estate market working with all major property types. Prior to joining The Simon Companies, he was a member of the real estate development team for The Kraft Group.
