Buckaplan.com launches easy to use online ordering website for your blueprints

February 16, 2012 - Connecticut

Are you paying too much for your blueprints? New easy to use online ordering website has been launched by Buckaplan.com.

There is no disputing that in today's very hectic, very electronic age, having professional services at your finger tips is a priority for most all of us in the business world today.

Could this level of expectation be bestowed on the service providers that print our oversized construction documents as well? The answer is, yes!

Bring your business into the 21st century. The internet's newest answer to on-demand large scale construction documents printed and delivered is... Bookmark it: Buckaplan.com. That is oversized architectural drawings and construction documents up to 36x48 inches that can be printed and delivered for one dollar a plan in unlimited quantities. There are no hidden charges, no sign-on fees, no monthly charges, and no file-processing fees. Just $1 per plan or drawing plus next-day delivery at ground rates. Buckaplan.com guarantees that if they receive a client's electronic files by 4 p.m., the client will have those plans the next day, anywhere in the U.S.

Buckaplan.com was started to meet the needs of its customers. We started Buckaplan.com to do our part to answer the economic struggles that we have been facing in the Northeast. Firms are working with a lot less, and individuals in those firms have many more responsibilities. We want to take the worry of document management off those busy plates.

My team and I have been in the reprographics industry and have served the construction industry for over 20 years. We have worked for many of the major construction companies, subcontractors, architectural and engineering firms in the Northeast. Having a clear understanding of the demanding deadlines required by the construction industry, the Buckaplan.com team works diligently to meet the expectations of their clients. We don't stop working because it's five o'clock. We adapt our schedules to meet the deadlines, and we are proud of being able to provide that high level of service.

Adding an on-line service was a natural extension of our business. Today's economy is incredibly challenging, especially to contractors. At Buckaplan.com, we understand that the last thing our clients want to worry about is when they can start working off their construction documents and what quality they will have to work with.

Instead of having a courier service pick up a flash drive, disk, or having to drive to your local printer as they had to do in the past, Buckaplan.com gives our clients the ability to upload their drawings to the Buckaplan.com platform and have them printed and shipped for only one dollar a plan.

We may be providing a service on-line, but creating a long-lasting business relationship with our customers is still our primary goal. Delivering quality prints when our customer needs them is the only way to remain competitive in this industry."

Buckaplan.com works with architects, construction managers, subcontractors, real estate brokers and developers, just like Steve Colucci. Colucci Brothers is responsible for the construction of over 200 homes and several commercial projects up and down the east coast. They have been a customer of Buckaplan.com for over a year. "The time and cost savings along with next day delivery has been great," said Colucci, "Now we get all our plans and drawings from Buckaplan.com. No surprises. We know we can count on Brian Burke and the digital documentation experts at Buckaplan.com."

Most of our clients are companies that don't have the large scale printing machines, the materials or experience needed to run them. Having an in-house operation is not an option for many of our clients due to the expense. We have high quality equipment and years of experience here in our facility. We are committed to printing and distributing plans for our clients so they don't have to worry about it. Our clients are often under tremendous pressure to meet their deadlines and they can count on us to deliver as promised.

Buckaplan.com already has loyal clientele in New York, Philadelphia, Springfield, and Boston, as well as across Connecticut and Rhode Island. It also has had clients in Tucson, AZ and Chicago, IL. To take advantage of Buckaplan.com, just visit the site or simply email your documents to plans@buckaplan.com. Buckaplan.com will work with you to make sure that what you expect is what you receive.

Brian Burke is owner of Buckaplan.com located in Waterbury, Conn.
