Buildings designed by Goody Clancy and Stevens & Wilkinson dedicated

March 08, 2012 - Front Section

According to Goody Clancy and Stevens & Wilkinson, two new research buildings on the campus of the Medical University of South Carolina were formally dedicated late in 2011. The two buildings add 208,000 s/f of collaborative research space to the campus. The James E. Clyburn Research Center comprises two buildings, the Drug Discovery Building and the Bioengineering Building. The research center brings together scientists, faculty and students from the state's three research universities: MUSC, the University of South Carolina and Clemson University.
