Faga and Knipe join Amenta/Emma

May 24, 2012 - Green Buildings

Growth continues at Amenta/Emma Architects PC with the addition Dennis Faga, RA and Emily Knipe. Continued optimism at the firm is backed not only by business activity but also the latest Architectural Billings Index (ABI) released April 18th. It reports growth for the fifth straight month, led by the commercial sector, which came in at its highest number since August 2007.

Faga joins the firm as project manager architect and Knipe as interior designer.

Faga received his masters of Architecture from the Catholic University of America. He has spent much of the last 10 years focusing on corporate interior fit out projects for a Washington, D.C. architectural firm. He is registered architect having worked the last 10 years on corporate interiors and base buildings.

Knipe received her bachelor of science in Interior Design from Endicott College. She brings commercial interior design experience to Amenta/Emma including projects ranging from 2,000 to over 100,000 s/f. Emily is a LEED Accredited Professional holding LEED AP ID+C certification. She has a passion for progressive, sustainability-driven design practices and offers valuable expertise in specifying sustainable finishes and furnishings.
