The Traditional Building Conference to be held July 25-26 at the Exchange Conference Center in Boston

July 19, 2012 - Construction Design & Engineering

The Traditional Building Conference Series returns to Boston July 25 and 26. The conference takes place at the historic Exchange Conference Center on the waterfront.

"Traditional Building: Design, Materials, and Methods" is the theme for this two-day design and construction industry conference. Seminars will cover historic preservation, careful remodeling, and building new in traditional ways. The study of historic buildings teaches traditional climate response strategies and durable, sustainable building practice.

Participants can earn up to 10 AIA HSW Learning Units as well as several GBCI CMP Continuing Education Hours for LEED accredited professionals.

The cost to attend is $199 for two-days and $149 for a single day. In addition, a new breakfast seminar, "From Mills to Micro-Lofts: Sustainable Design Solutions for Urban Living" will be available for $65 on Wednesday, July 25 at 8 am. Prices increase on July 18 as space is limited. Tuition includes continental breakfast and lunch each day as well as a cocktail reception on July 25.

The program's speakers are outstanding national, regional and local leaders from the field of traditional building field including the following:

- * John Grosvenor, AIA, founder and CEO and Michael Abbott, AIA, founding principal of Northeast Collaborative Architects, Providence and Newport
- * Matthew Bronski, PE, senior project manager of Simpson Gumpertz Heger, Boston
