02-01-2013 - ASM to offer LEED training Feb. 1-2

January 17, 2013 - Construction Design & Engineering

ASM is pleased to team up with the Boston chapter of NAWIC (National Association of Women in Construction), to offer a two-day LEED Green Associate course, which is the first step towards becoming a LEED Accredited Professional (AP). The two-day course on Feb. 1-2 will be presented by Everblue, nationally recognized as a leader in LEED training. Each student will receive an Everblue course manual, memorization study sheets, 500 online practice questions, and a certification of completion, which qualifies students to sit for the LEED Green Associate exam. Depending on interest, the LEED AP training will be offered later in the spring.

The Feb. 1-2 course will be hosted by engineering firm Simpson, Gumphertz & Heger in Waltham and the cost to attend is $350, a fraction of regular rates.

Space is limited and registrations deadline is this week. For more information contact ASM at 617-742-3412 or visit www.associatedsubs.com today.
