Perez of Tsoi/Kobus honored by ASIS

September 18, 2007 - Construction Design & Engineering

Caroline Perez of Tsoi/Kobus & Associates (TK&A) has been selected by the American Society of Interior Designers (ASID) New England as its "20 Under 30" award winner. The award, which was presented at ASID New England's annual dinner on October 4th, honors "young, up-and-coming interior designers and industry providers in New England."

Perez joined TK&A in 2003. Among the projects she has worked on are Suffolk University's Mildred F. Sawyer Library, the Medical College of Wisconsin's Biomedical Research Facility, and Boston Medical Center's Moakley Building. In June, Perez received her Masters of Interior Design from the Boston Architectural Center (BAC), where she was honored with the Lussier Practice Award for excellence in transferring knowledge between the academic setting and the workplace.
