In what way has the New England Real Estate Journal been a benefit to you and your business?

The New England Real Estate Journal is the source of information and what is going on in the region. Transactions, discussions, history and more can all be found within its pages. It never fails to surprise me how far and deep the readership is. In the past I have had opportunities to write for the journal and sometimes my phone would ring and sometimes a few months later a person would reach out and say "thanks for the information."
