May 16, 2013 - Construction Design & Engineering

Executives at PayPal and its sister company, StubHub, joined mayor Thomas Menino to celebrate their new, collaborative office space in the Financial District. PayPal relocated from 25,000 s/f in the North End to 65,000 s/f on the 5th and 6th floor of One International Place. PayPal retained 160 full time jobs during the move and are incubating 12 start ups with 40+ entrepreneurs at the new location. StubHub added 50 new employees to its team. PayPal was assisted with site location by the BRA's business development team and the Massachusetts Office of Business Development.

"Boston has a young and educated population, a strong economy, and a vibrant future â€" all driving forces in the innovative business sector. We're proud to have a forward-thinking company like PayPal join the ranks of tech organizations locating downtown," said Mayor Menino
