ASM launches newly designed website

May 16, 2013 - Construction Design & Engineering

ASM launched its the newly designed ASM website which went live in April. The new website offers many new features not previously available through our prior system including faster response times, greater functionality and a sleek new look. Members will immediately notice the ease with which they can access the ASM calendar and register for events. They can even view those already registered.

ASM strives to provide the most value to our members and offering a more user-friendly website is just one of the ways we are improving service.
