J. M. Brown Co., Grinnell Mechanical and AGEO form energy management ptrsp.

June 27, 2013 - Green Buildings

J. & M. Brown Company, Inc. (JMB), Grinnell Mechanical, Inc. and AGEO Corp. (Aligning Green Operations & Environments), have formed a partnership that provides comprehensive energy efficiency and sustainability services and solutions for corporate, educational, biotechnology, and healthcare clients throughout the northeast. The joint venture, AGEO 360°, integrates JMB's Electrical and Energy Divisions, Grinnell's HVAC services and AGEO's world-class engineering capabilities.

AGEO 360° will provide complete design-build-consulting services geared to ensure optimal building performance and that firms meet sustainability and energy-efficiency reporting regulations as set forth Boston's recently enacted Building Energy Disclosure and Reporting Ordinance. The ordinance provides specific energy reporting and disclosure requirements for building owners.

AGEO 360° services will include: Building analysis, certified facility energy audits, M/E/P structural engineering design and management consulting and implementation of energy efficiency projects; electrical installations and retrofits, EE lighting system design and installation; HVAC control system installations; commissioning, measurement and verification; renewable energy design and installation; energy modeling and engineering analysis; reporting, compliance and assurance; sustainability governance; resource management; sustainable supply chain; LEED building certification; and full building automation and monitoring.

AGEO 360° organizations build value by uncovering sustainability solutions that improve both building and operational performance.

The AGEO team integrates a broad range of talent and capabilities - across human capital, strategy & operations and technology - aligned to the unique needs of specific sectors, businesses and organizations. The AGEO operational management/consulting team is comprised of professionals from leading consulting firms, including Deloitte, PricewaterhouseCoopers (PwC), KPMG and Accenture.

"Clients look to us for the ability to implement the sustainability ideas we present," said AGEO corp. director of operations, Paul McClung. "We provide world-class insights that generate tangible and measurable impact in sustainability."

"AGEO is pleased to be joining forces with two of Boston's top performing companies to provide 360° Sustainability Solutions," said George Pyro, PE, president of AGEO Engineering Corp. "This powerful combination of proven leaders ensures Greater Boston companies will receive optimal solutions to meet there green energy operational and sustainability needs."
