Proctor newest member of Warrenstreet Architects' employee-owned cooperative

July 03, 2013 - Northern New England

Doug Proctor became a member of Warrenstreet Architects' employee-owned cooperative. Proctor has been with Warrenstreet since 2004, relocating to Concord from Wilmington, Delaware and has more than 25 years experience. The members of the cooperative feel he brings a solid work ethic, good client following and a pragmatic approach to solving the many issues facing the design profession today.

Proctor has played a key role as a project architect for more than nine years. He has a sharp eye and is involved in all phases of project development, ranging from master planning and conceptual design to construction documentation and administration, and has extensive project management experience.

In order to be eligible to become a member you have to have worked in your current position for seven years and have been employed with Warrenstreet for three years.
