Integrated Builders, Inc. hires Kelliher as project manager

August 02, 2013 - Owners Developers & Managers

Integrated Builders, Inc. has added project manager Dean Kelliher to their growing team of construction professionals. Prior to joining Integrated Builders, Kelliher was project manager for Pihl, Inc. and was a key member of the $90 million Pawtucket River Bridge replacement team. Kelliher has also served as a project manager for a number of firms over his 30-year career, including Bufftree Building Co. of New Bedford, Dacon Corp., and Westcott Construction Corp.

Kelliher brings a demonstrated track record of expertise in the institutional, industrial, commercial, and life sciences private sector markets.

Integrated Builders president Jay Dacey said, "We are excited to have Dean join our team," said Dacey. "His wealth of experience across the construction spectrum make him an ideal addition to our expanding firm."

Kelliher, a graduate of the Wentworth Institute of Technology, expressed enthusiasm about joining Integrated Builders. "Integrated Builders is well regarded as a client-oriented firm," he said. "This is a great opportunity to apply my experience to a rapidly growing company."
