Mass Impact

March 20, 2008 - Construction Design & Engineering

On March 28 and June 9, the BSA and MIT bring together leading U.S. and international urbanists for Mass Impact, a two-part symposium addressing cities and climate change. Join public officials, designers, and others to explore strategies employed by cities on the leading edge of sustainable urban design, as well as to discuss how these innovative technologies and policies could be adapted for New England.
