October 31, 2013 - Front Section

On October 5, Jones Lang LaSalle's (JLL) Boston office participated in a flag football tournament to benefit the New England Chapter of the Crohn's & Colitis Foundation of America. The team was sponsored by Crohn's and Colitis board member Mark Rubin, president of MARIC, a Needham, Mass.-based real estate development and investment company and client of JLL. The JLL team was one of 10 teams from the Greater Boston business community that spent the day at Gillette Stadium competing in four rounds of spirited touch football games leading to the final.

The JLL team was comprised of 12 employees from these business groups: brokerage, capital markets, construction, project and development services, property management, and Spaulding & Slye Investments.
