December 12, 2013 - Rhode Island

Leeds Mitchell IV of MG Commercial and Matt Fair of Cushman & Wakefield | Hayes & Sherry completed a 25,750 s/f lease with Swipely at 10 Dorrance St. Fair represented the owner of the building, Summit Real Estate Strategies, while Mitchell represented Swipely.

"We are excited to welcome Swipely to our building and the Downtown Providence market," said Scott Rouisse, president of Summit. "It's great to see so many high-growth companies move in to downtown. They seem to be drawn by the vibrancy of the city, the transit options, the large number of restaurants and cafes. It seems like parking is becoming less of an issues for them."

Swipely is the simple way for local merchants to accept payments, understand customers and grow revenue. Swipely's valuable payments, analytics and marketing tools work with systems merchants already have and with cards consumers already use. Merchants use Swipely to manage over one billion dollars in sales and to deepen relationships with nearly 4 million customers.

Founded by Angus Davis and named to the Forbes Magazine 100 list of "America's Most Promising Companies," the Providence based company includes veterans of Tellme, Microsoft, LivingSocial and SeamlessWeb, and is backed by leading Silicon Valley investors including First Round Capital, Index Ventures, Shasta Ventures, and Greylock Partners, among others.
