AlliedCook Construction celebrates 55 years

January 02, 2014 - Northern New England

AlliedCook Construction is celebrating its 55th year in business. The company has earned the reputation as one of the premier construction management and design-build companies in Maine and New Hampshire with extensive experience in education, healthcare, commercial, industrial, housing and hospitality projects.

Established in 1958 by Donald Cook and later led by son David Cook who took over as president in 1977, AlliedCook transitioned from a traditional general contractor into one of today's most successful firms specializing exclusively in construction management and design build. Some of the firm's most notable projects over the decades include the original Maine Mall; 100 Middle Street East and West Office Towers in downtown Portland, Anthem Blue Cross Blue Shield Headquarters, Fairchild, Portland Harbor Hotel, and Guy Gannett Publishing to name a few.

AlliedCook's commitment to client service is demonstrated by numerous long-standing relationships, including a 50-year relationship with Morong Falmouth, a 35-year relationship with the University of New England, a 20-year relationship with Sandy River Company, and a nearly 20-year relationship with Gorham Savings Bank among numerous others.

AlliedCook Construction is now led by third generation Matthew Cook, president, and Daniel Cook, executive vice president. As chief executive officer, Dave Cook still remains active in the business. The Cook's contribute their success over the years to a strong commitment to their core values - integrity, trust and superior quality. "Throughout our 55-year history, we have been privileged to develop meaningful relationships with our clients. We are grateful for and truly value those relationships which have allowed us to be successful throughout the decades," said Matthew Cook. AlliedCook has grown to a staff of over 40 employees, including several who have been with the company for over two decades.
