Davis joins Johnson Roberts Associates, Inc. as principal

February 27, 2014 - Front Section

Jeffrey Davis, AIA, has joined Johnson Roberts Associates, Inc as a principal. His addition to the firm's leadership team enhances their established ability to provide clients with exceptional design for learning environments.

With over 25 years of professional experience as an architect, Davis has programmed, planned, designed and managed a variety of institutional projects. As former president and CEO of an award-winning planning and design firm, Davis brings a wealth of experience in all aspects of design, business management, business development, and project management to Johnson Roberts Associates.

"We're very pleased to have Jeff working with us-in the case of two of us, working with us again," said Philip O'Brien, LEED AP and principal at Johnson Roberts. "Jeff's experience and expertise will allow us to expand and enrich the services we can offer our clients."

Davis studied environmental design as an undergraduate at the University of Colorado and completed his master of architecture at MIT. He is a member of numerous professional groups, including the American Institute of Architects, the Boston Society of Architects, the Council for Educational Facilities Planners International, and the Society of College and University Planners (SCUP), among others. Additionally, he has spoken at conferences and seminars across the country and is recognized as a thought leader in the planning, program and design of learning environments.
