The John Flatley Company names winners of 2014 Flatley Challenge

April 03, 2014 - Northern New England

The John Flatley Company revealed the winners of the 2014 Flatley Challenge; Pilera Software, an online property management software company and SMTP, a cloud-based email delivery service. This year's challenge brought an excellent pool of talented applicants.

Each winner of this innovative competition will receive one year of free office rent and a $10,000 cash prize to be used for fit-up, connectivity and/or related business costs.

The Flatley Challenge is designed to assist entrepreneurs in the fields of IT, communications, storage, connectivity, robotics, medical devices, life sciences and other leading-edge technologies. It is intended to stimulate the development and growth of early-stage companies by providing them both a first-class workspace, plus the opportunity to interact with world class companies.
