Parker joins JM Coull, Inc. as senior project manager

June 05, 2014 - Owners Developers & Managers

JM Coull, Inc., a 30 year old Mass. construction firm, has hired Greg Parker as senior project manager. Parker was most recently a project executive at Comeau & Kelly in Stoughton, and served as senior project manager at the Clark Construction Group in Boston.

As JM Coull continues to expand its resume, the company has added to its pool of seasoned project management staff. JM Coull looks forward to its continued growth both internally and within the industry.

Company president Andy Coull said, "Greg brings to JMC experience across several of our existing markets, including manufacturing, life sciences, healthcare and academic as well as some growing areas such as multi-unit residential. This is a key in assisting our growing customer base to meet their construction goals as effectively as possible. We are very pleased to have Greg here and he has already hit the ground running with three assignments - an office renovation and two new construction projects that will break ground in the early summer timeframe."

JM Coull is a construction management, design-build and general contracting firm specializing in new construction and renovations for the life sciences, advanced technology, education, healthcare, and multi-unit residential markets. The firm uses an integrated approach to project management and focuses attention on the early phases of a project, using its proprietary StartSmart process, to ensure overall success. The company works throughout New England from its headquarters in Maynard, Mass.
