NAIOP members roll up their sleeves at Greater Boston Food Bank

September 26, 2007 - Front Section

More than 40 members of Boston's commercial real estate community left their offices to spend an afternoon sorting, lifting, and packing up more than 10,000 pounds of food at the Greater Boston Food Bank as part of the second annual NAIOP Community Service Day, held Wednesday, September 19th. Through their efforts, they helped the Food Bank provide more than 6,400 meals to needy families throughout the region, sorting an average of 194 pounds per volunteer!

"We were glad to provide this chance for our members to come together for a good cause, while also spending time with each other in a fun, out-of-office environment," said Fran Shifman, NAIOP Massachusetts's CEO. "We are proud of our membership for their hard work today, as well as for their ongoing support of our other charitable activities."

Volunteers received a short training session on how to safely sort the donated food and then moved to the warehouse where they spent almost three hours unpacking, sorting, and repacking boxes of "salvage," which come from grocery stores and other sources, and provides about 15% of the Food Bank's needs. Afterwards, volunteers and NAIOP staff regrouped at a local restaurant for informal networking and refreshments, courtesy of the event's sponsor, Eastern Bank.

"It was a great opportunity to give back to the community," said Melissa Gillespie, human resources manager for Spagnolo Gisness & Associates, Inc., who came with three co-workers. "Everyone should know what it feels like to go home after an event like this one and feel they did a little bit of good in the world."
