Rosner joins Levey Miller Maretz Real Estate Services

June 19, 2014 - Connecticut

According to Steve Miller of Levey Miller Maretz Real Estate Services, Jeremy Rosner has joined the firm.

Rosner has worked in real estate for the past decade, most recently at Rosner Doherty Realty, a boutique residential and commercial real estate firm in New Haven. Previously he was senior vice president at New York Commercial Realty Services, where he managed a team of 30 commercial leasing agents in Manhattan.

He currently serves on the board of trustees of the Jewish Federation of Greater New Haven; the Hopkins School alumni board, at his alma mater; and is a member of the Walter Camp Football Foundation. He is actively involved in PULSE, the Greater New Haven Chamber of Commerce's young professional group, of which he is a past board member. He founded the Greater New Haven Breakfast Club networking group, and in 2013 was named one of "New Haven's Finest" by the Connecticut chapter of the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation for his professional and community work.

Levey Miller Maretz, established in 1963, specializes in the sale, leasing and management of retail, office, industrial and investment properties throughout Conn. Their residential services include sales, apartment rentals and property management.
