September 04, 2014 - Owners Developers & Managers

According to Michael Smith, Avison Young principal and managing director, former senior project manager Isabel Acuña has been named director of project management in Avison Young's Boston office.

Acuña joined Avison Young in 2012 with 19 years of industry experience, having worked with companies including The Walsh Company and Barr & Barr Inc., as senior project manager and project manager, respectively. During her time at Avison Young, Acuña has represented notable clients, including Normandy Real Estate Partners, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Tufts Medical Center, and MediaTek. In her new role as director of project management, Acuña will work with landlords and tenants, managing their projects during the pre-construction and construction phases.

"Isabel has continually gone above and beyond expectations during her time at Avison Young," said Smith. "Having already made a positive impact both internally and with our clients, it was a logical decision to provide her with increased opportunity for growth in the industry."

"As the director of project management at a fast-growing and collaborative company such as Avison Young, I am excited to work on key projects for leading international companies and sophisticated landlords," said Acuña. "I am pleased to take on a larger role at Avison Young and look forward to further contributing to the success of the company."

Acuña received her bachelor of science degree in civil engineering from the Tecnológico de Monterrey in Monterrey, Mexico. Following her studies in Mexico, she obtained her master's degree in civil engineering at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. She received her LEED AP D+C (accredited professional in green building design and construction) in 2009. Additionally, Acuña is fluent in English and Spanish and volunteers at the Catholic Charities of the Archdiocese in Boston.
