Advanced Burner Solutions introduces revolutionary fuel oil burner for homes and small businesses

September 04, 2014 - Owners Developers & Managers

Advanced Burner Solutions (ABS) introduced a revolutionary fuel oil burner for New England homes and small businesses. This product introduction represents the world's first modulating, ultra-high pressure oil burner that reduces fuel oil use and emissions dramatically.

The manufacturing company, ABSs, provides an 8% fuel reduction guarantee with the purchase of any of the TS-2 or TS-3 burners. "We put the guarantee in place to provide our customers peace of mind," said Eric Lavoie, the products inventor. "If a customer doesn't save at least 8% on their fuel use, then we offer our customer the option of refunding the equipment purchase price."

Using ultra-high pressure fuel injection technology, the Burner Booster product line enhances the combustion process by creating a fine mist from the oil. This enhanced combustion results in a more complete burn of the fuel, resulting in lower fuel use and reduced emissions while producing equivalent heat production.

"As we face the oncoming winter, many of us are trying to find ways to save money heating our homes," said Steve Hayes, ABS' CEO. "We have had the Burner Booster in commercial settings over the past 3 years. Some customers have saved well over 30% on their heating bills. Now this same money saving technology is available for home and small business owners."

The new burners can be installed on virtually any heating system by a customer's regular technician. Installation takes 2 hours to complete so there is no risk of complications when the units are installed.

Customers begin saving money on heat and hot water from the first day the system is installed with most customers achieving a return on their investment (ROI) within 3-5 years.

ABS is a Massachusetts based company that develops, manufactures and sells the Burner Booster product line. More information on the Burner Booster can be found at www.theburnerbooster.com.
