Faithful + Gould opens Providence office

September 11, 2014 - Rhode Island

In order to better serve clients throughout the New England region, Faithful+Gould opened a new location in Providence. Located at 151 Broadway in the historic Federal Hill neighborhood, the new office will be led by Walter Zaman, lead estimator, with oversight by Paul Male, senior vice president and director of Faithful+Gould's Boston office.

Zaman said that the addition of a Providence office will enable the firm to expand its presence throughout the region. "Faithful+Gould has worked with almost every college and university in New England, but the distance to Rhode Island and Connecticut in particular has been an obstacle," he said. "Having a base of operations in Providence will allow us to better serve our clients in those states and to target new opportunities."

Zaman will be joined in this move by project managers/cost estimators Ron Ricitelli and Robert Zaman, also formerly of the Boston office.
