zipLogix partners with Deductr to offer expense tracking application

September 18, 2014 - Front Section

zipLogix has partnered with Deductr to offer their automated expense, mileage, and time tracking application designed to help real estate professionals maximize their business tax deductions. Real estate professionals that utilize zipLogix products will have access to an exclusive discount for Deductr Pro. Users can easily track their expenses, income, mileage, and time on-the-go with secure integration that eliminates the pile of receipts that can make tax time so chaotic.

"Establishing relationships that increase the value of our user's subscription is essential to growing the value proposition for all zipLogix products," said Walt McDonald, chairman of the board for zipLogix. "Deductr is a product that can drastically improve our user's ability to maximize deductions."

"At Deductr, we understand that no one likes doing taxes, but with Deductr PRO we can ensure that we take advantage of all our eligible deductions and eliminate tax-time stress," said John Thomas, CEO of Deductr. "Partnering with zipLogix helps showcase our technology to an industry that needs the powerful functionality available in Deductr Pro."

With the extensive knowledge of the way real estate professionals do business, partner applications such as Deductr add value and increase efficiency to agents and brokers.