Traditional Building Exhibition and Conference visits Boston

April 17, 2008 - Construction Design & Engineering

The Traditional Building Exhibition and Conference, the tradeshow and conference dedicated to historic restoration, renovation and traditionally inspired new construction returned to Boston's Hynes Convention Center, March 12-15.

Attendees could explore every aspect of the region's rich design legacy - from churches to theaters, public and commercial buildings, to the wide array of Colonial, Classical, Victorian, and Modernist-styled homes. There were over 75 seminars, workshops and tours.

Sustainability took center stage. This year's Traditional Building Conference featured a special series of seminars that focused on the strategies to "green" renovation and rehabilitation.
