H.A. Fisher Homes celebrates opening of model homes

May 07, 2015 - Rhode Island

Local and state officials joined leaders of h.a. Fisher Homes and Coldwell Banker Residential Brokerage in New England to celebrate the ribbon cutting of three fully furnished model homes at Reynolds Farm, a new community under construction that will include 242 residences.

Designed as a traditional neighborhood development and conveniently located off Post Rd. with easy access to major highways, Reynolds Farm will include a mix of single-family homes, single-level cottages and live-work townhomes when it is completed. The model homes are located in Kingstowne Ridge, a neighborhood of Reynolds Farm consisting of 41-single-family homes that is part of the first phase of construction. The first phase also includes the construction of 18 single-level cottages and 24 live-work townhomes.

"We are so pleased to offer the first glimpse of Reynolds Farm. Reynolds Farm will be a tremendous asset to the state's economy and will introduce a variety of new housing options in Rhode Island. The homes at Reynolds Farm will incorporate energy-efficient features that will not only generate significant savings for homeowners, but will also be of benefit to the region's natural environment," said Hugh Fisher, founder and president of h.a. Fisher Homes. "We would like to thank local leaders for their continued support in embracing our vision to create a community that is unlike any others in Rhode Island."

The single-family homes in Kingstowne Ridge will range in size from 1,500 to over 2,100 s/f. Each single-family home will offer three bedrooms, 2 ½ bathrooms, and garages. Highlights include hardwood and tile flooring, granite kitchen countertops and fireplaces.

All of the homes at Reynolds Farm, which are designed by Design Basics of Omaha, Neb., will be Woman-Centric. The Woman-Centric design concept thoughtfully incorporates a woman's point of view to include ample storage space, flexibility in the usage of space, abundant open space for easy entertaining and designated spaces for relaxation.

The residences at Reynolds Farm are being exclusively marketed by The Stone Alliance, a sales team affiliated with the Coldwell Banker Residential Brokerage office in Warwick.
