Needham Electric Supply hosts free seminar, "Taking Your Business Online 101" in March

May 28, 2015 - Front Section

Needham Electric Supply hosted a free seminar in March, "Taking Your Business Online 101," for their customers. Needham Electric's marketing manager and social media specialist, presenting to a group of electricians and contractors, covered topics such as how to set up a business page on Facebook, LinkedIn, Twitter and Google +. The marketing team shared tips on content to post, frequency, how to advertise, best practices and the importance of prompt response to customer inquiries and comments. The seminar highlighted the ease, availability and usefulness of social media as a tool to advertise and boost sales for small businesses and independent contractors.
