Greater Boston Plumbing Contractors Association name Cannistraro president

June 04, 2015 - Owners Developers & Managers

According to Cannistraro the company CFO Joe Cannistraro has been elected president of the Greater Boston Plumbing Contractors Association (GBPCA). Formerly known as the PHCC of Greater Boston, the organization works to promote union plumbing organizations in and around the city of Boston, as well as provide annual training and scholarships to member companies. Joe has been an active organization leader and board member for more than five years, and begins his two-year term in May. As president, he will collaborate with the New England Mechanical Contractors Association (NEMCA) and PHCC of Massachusetts to give a strong voice to the plumbing industry, and serve as a representative for management during collective bargaining and labor-related negotiations that impact the organization and its members.
