North Branch begins construction at Southern New Hampshire University baseball stadium

September 03, 2015 - Northern New England

North Branch Construction of Concord has begun the design/build renovation of the Southern New Hampshire University baseball stadium. Construction will include a new press box with a second floor level press room and a rooftop deck viewing area, stadium bleacher seating, as well as restrooms. The completed project will service the existing fields.

Construction is expected to be complete by the end of October. Design for the project is provided by Dennis Mires, The Architects of Manchester.
