March 31, 2017 - Front Section

Boston, MA Callahan Construction Managers (Callahan), a Bridgewater-based full-service construction management firm, partnered with Cradles to Crayons for Builders' Day, a special event that joins colleagues from the engineering, construction, project management and architecture industries to help support children across the Commonwealth. The Callahan team, alongside other industry leaders, volunteered their time and efforts to sort, size and package KidPacks filled with basic necessities for children in need.

Callahan was among 10 organizations that dedicated time to help Cradles to Crayons impact nearly 1,100 local children by providing products necessary for their daily life in school, at home and at play. Collectively, local partners helped raise $4,400 for children across the Commonwealth.

As a family-owned, community focused business, Callahan continually strives to support the local economy and workforce through proactive community outreach efforts, which includes buying local, hiring local and employing local trades people. Callahan also actively participates in volunteer activities with local nonprofits and involvement in community events. Select community organizations that Callahan has supported include Cradles to Crayons, Rosie's Place, Caritas Communities, Heading Home and Friends of Boston Homeless, among others.
