RealShare Boston Conference to be held May 28th at Hyatt Regency Boston

May 21, 2008 - Front Section

The state of the Boston-area commercial real estate market will be discussed and debated at the fourth annual "RealShare Boston," networking conference on May 28th at the Hyatt Regency Boston. RealShare Boston will feature high-level executives in the Boston-area market who will address market fundamentals, the outlook for downtown and suburban investment and leasing and whether or not the Boston-area's commercial real estate market will be resilient to macroeconomic trends in our nation's economy.

In the RealShare Boston "Is the Glass Half-Full or Half-Empty" discussion, Thomas Alperin of National Development, Peter Merrigan of Taurus Investment Holdings, Kevin McCall of Paradigm Capital Advisors and William McCall of McCall & Almy square off in an informative exchange on whether or not 2008 is a time to be positive or negative about the Boston market.

RealShare Boston will place Gale International's John Hynes III in the spotlight in the RealShare "Inside the Real Estate Mind" session. The developer will offer his take on the market in this introspective interview.

The RealShare Boston special focus session: "Credit, Capital & Inappropriate Leverage" will offer a thorough look at the current debt and equity capital markets, and future prospect for a return to normalcy.

Additional RealShare Boston speakers include: John Hennessey, GVA Williams; Philip Dorman, Boston Properties; Michael Joyce, Richards Barry Joyce & Partners; Daniel Palmier, Potomac Realty Capital; David Cohen, GE Real Estate; Steven Vornea, CFA Capital Partners, LLC; Jack Kerrigan, Grubb & Ellis; Gary Holmes, R.W. Holmes and Brian Kavogian, Charles River Realty.
