BOMA Boston 100th Anniversary Celebration and upcoming events

April 07, 2017 - Owners Developers & Managers

Boston, MA On Thursday, March 23, BOMA Boston hosted a Centennial Celebration at the UMass Club, to commemorate 100 years of service in the commercial real estate industry. Over 300 members and guests attended to celebrate this special occasion and hear more about the new strategic initiatives BOMA Boston is establishing over the next several years. Mike Gill, director of operations for the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston and BOMA immediate past president, shared BOMA Boston's Strategic Plan focused on four themes— operational (including a re-branding with a new logo, mission, statement and vision); educational industry excellence; and the enhancement of strategic relationships (developing and enhancing strategic relationships with Mass Maritime, BOMA International and GBREB). Henry Chamberlain, BOMA International president and COO, spoke of his history with BOMA Boston dating back over 3 decades and commented on how much has changed in the commercial real estate industry over the years. He also shared that, "BOMA built that value through the advocacy, the building codes, and (partnering) with the Greater Boston Real Estate Board." Rob Brierley, senior vice president of real estate services for Colliers International and BOMA international chair-elect welcomed the crowd and encouraged members to attend the 2017 BOMA International Annual Conference & Expo to be held in June in Nashville, where he will be installed as Boston's first BOMA International chair.
