Hingham, MA Callahan Construction Managers, a Bridgewater-based full-service construction management firm, in partnership with Boston and Hingham-based A.W. Perry, a real estate investment and services firm and joint venture partner Boston Andes Capital, LLC (BAC) commemorated the groundbreaking of the newest waterfront condominium community, Brio.

Located at 10 Shipyard Dr. at the Hingham Shipyard, Brio will feature 77 one and two-bedroom condominiums overlooking the marina, as well as 160 indoor and outdoor parking spaces for residents. The property is located adjacent to a variety of restaurants and retail offerings, in addition to the MBTA commuter boat and bus.

“A.W. Perry has a long history of developing successful real estate projects in Hingham, and we look forward to continuing that legacy with Brio.” said Bob Maloney, executive vice president and managing director of acquisitions for A.W. Perry. “We are pleased to partner with Callahan in the construction of this vibrant waterfront property in a community known for a variety of options for entertainment, shopping and dining. This is going to be a great project for us and for the town of Hingham. ”

The four-story, 160,000 s/f Brio will bring life into the previously unoccupied northwest corner of the Hingham Shipyard. Designed by architects ART & BH+A with project management by c3, a premier commercial construction consulting firm, Brio is slated to become an ideal destination for those looking to enjoy the luxury of living on the water with the convenience of direct access into Boston.

“With our previous experience in the construction of properties in the Hingham Shipyard, we’re thrilled to partner with A.W.
